

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A putter head that is secured by two brackets and a vibration stabilizer connected in between which are all positioned behind the the putter head which reduces the twisting of the putter head upon the impact of a golf ball. The shape of the putter head can have a big or small flat face or can be elongated in the back.